

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Digitally marked objects and promotional methods include presenting a digitally watermarked object to a reader device at a first location, decoding information from the watermark, and triggering a first response thereto. The method also includes presenting the object to a reader device at a second location, decoding information from the watermark, and triggering a second, different, response thereto.